CONSERVATION WORK HIGHLIGHTS

- Successfully worked to have Green Swamp added to the Preservation 2000 acquisition list.
- Successfully lobbied agencies and presented information to the Acquisition and Restoration Council to prevent the surplus of Hilochee Wildlife Management Area property.
- With Richard Coleman, initiated the Lake Hancock restoration project in 1999.
- With Richard Coleman and Smiley Hendry, cleared approximately 28 miles of Fisheating Creek of the water hyacinths in October/November 1994. The objective was for the creek to be fully navigable for the judge presiding over the sovereign lands lawsuit filed against Lykes Brothers. The case of Florida versus Lykes regarding Fisheating Creek was settled in May of 1999. Fisheating Creek was declared a public waterway and the case set a major precedent both legally and politically, which will serve to protect as many as 7,000 miles of other Florida rivers and lakes. Earthjustice Legal Defense Fund attorney, David Guest, stated that the people of Florida were "...awarded the entire riverbed" from the Highlands County line to Lake Okeechobee for no monetary consideration having to be paid to Lykes Brothers (9,000 acres). The people of Florida bought 9,000 more acres of conservation and recreation lands along Fisheating Creek. The ruling also provided for a 42,000-acre conservation easement to provide a huge buffer around the creek and to protect its streams and swamps.
- With others, worked successfully for the passage of Polk County’s Environmental Lands Referendum
- Worked to bring about the acquisition of a gopher tortoise mitigation park in Polk County
- Established the need for and co-chaired the Polk Land Stewardship Alliance whose goal to “Provide incentives that would strongly encourage the conservation of agricultural lands, wildlife habitat and corridors, and be self-initiating.”
- Instrumental in the defeat of the ill-conceived Surplus Conservation Lands program by the Florida Department of Environmental Protection in 2013. Program was terminated without surplussing any conservation lands.
- Active in petition and campaign efforts to pass the Florida Water and Land Legacy Amendment 2012-2014.
- As member of the Sierra Club Florida’s Phosphate Mining Committee, worked to improve avoidance, preservation and mitigation related to phosphate mine permits in Southwest Florida – 2009-2019.
- As member of the Sierra Club Ancient Islands Group worked with other stakeholders to have wildlife crossings installed across I-4 in 3 locations in the Green Swamp and other locations in Polk County. 1992 – Present
- Vice-Chair of Polk Forever PAC – worked to pass second Polk County Environmental Lands Referendum to provide funding for the acquisition and management of conservation lands 2022. The effort was successful passing by 58%.
